SOUTH STANDS FIRMLY BY ITS OLD TRADITIONS

In Various States Democratic Candidates Are Elected With Usual Big Majorities.

EIGHT SENATORS ARE NAMED

Six Governors Also Chosen, With But One in Doubt-Some Close Congressional Battles Waged-Only Two New Senators in List.

ATLANTA, GA., November 3 .- The South retained its traditional allegiance to the Democratic party in to-day's elections in the various States. Eight United States Senators, all Democrats, and six Governors were elected.

The only Democratic gubernatorial nomince whose election was not definitely assured by the early returns was R. L. Williams, of Oklahoma. These

R. L. Williams, of Oklahoma. These reports showed John Fleids, his Republican opponent, polling a large vote, and only a few hundred votes behind Williams. Later reports, however, showed Williams still ahead.

Congressional districts in which the results were left in doubt by the returns available up to midnight, included the Eighth and Tenth North Carolina, the Fifth Tennessee, the Eighth Oklahoma and the Third Louisiana.

F. A. Linney. Republican, opposing Representative R. L. Doughton in the Eighth North Carolina, and J. J. Britt, Republican, running against Representative James M. Gudger in the Tenth North Carolina, showed unexpected strength. Both of the present Representatives are Democrats.

Representative W. C. Houston, Democrat, of the Fifth Tennessee, was opposed by H. C. Watts and Donk Aydelott, who made the race as Democratic-Independent candidates.

In the Eighth Oklahoma, Representative Dick T. Morgan, Republican, had strong opposition from H. S. Johnston, the Democratic candidate. It was believed, however, that Morgan would retain his lead.
